ABOUT THE BAND

IRONCLAD

Ironclad are a dirty, loud, no prisoners heavy metal band built for pubs, clubs, biker nights and any venue that still believes metal should be played live, not programmed. Formed by professional touring musicians with decades on the road, Ironclad deliver the kind of earbleeding, sweatdrenched, moshpitready metal show people remember from the 80s - the kind nobody else is brave enough to play anymore.

This is raw, strippedback, real metal: one guitarist, one bassist, one drummer, one vocalist. No tracks. No safety nets. No bullshit. Just four musicians pushing air, rattling ribcages and hitting the room like a freight train.

Ironclad specialise in the biggest, hardest, most crowd-pleasing metal anthems from the late 70s and 80s - the era when metal ruled the world. And while almost every modern band hides behind tracks, layers and laptops, Ironclad do it the way it was meant to be done: loud, live and dangerous.

Nobody else is playing this music properly anymore. Ironclad are - and the crowds know it.

SUMMARY

LONG BIO

Ironclad are a raw, strippedback, no prisoners heavy metal band delivering the biggest and most iconic metal anthems from the late 70s and 80s. Formed by professional touring musicians with decades of experience, Ironclad specialise in the kind of loud, sweaty, earbleeding metal show that defined the golden age of the genre - the kind of show almost nobody plays live anymore.

Their identity is forged in the era when metal was dangerous: one guitarist, one bassist, one drummer, one vocalist. No tracks. No click. No safety nets. Just four musicians pushing air, rattling ribcages and hitting the room with the kind of volume and attitude that creates mosh pits, raised horns and ringing ears.

Ironclad's setlist is built on the foundations of true metal: Judas Priest, Iron Maiden, Saxon, Motörhead, AC/DC, Dio, Ozzy Osbourne, Rainbow, Scorpions, Van Halen, Metallica and more. These are the songs that shaped the genre - the riffs that shook arenas, the choruses that defined a generation, the tracks that still dominate streaming platforms today. It's the biggest music in the world, and Ironclad are one of the only bands still playing it properly.

The band's pedigree is undeniable. Collectively, they've performed with Revelation Rhoads, LA80, Led Into Zeppelin, Iron Mayhem, Who's Who, Blood Red Saints, Gary Moore UK, Jetset Junkies, Riff Raff and Speak Evil.
